9th Annual International Education Conference

GLOBAL PATHWAYS

Friday, April 13, 2012
8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

LSC-North Harris Conference Center
2700 W.W. Thorne, Houston, Texas 77073
OPENING SPEAKER:

Heino R. Erichsen

Pathway to Freedom:
“The Reluctant Warrior, Former POW Finds Peace in Texas”

Captured as an 18-year-old private in North Africa during World War II, Heino Erichsen was first sent to a Prisoner of War (POW) camp in Hearne, Texas. Few recall that Texas housed some 50,000 Axis prisoners, predominantly German, at various camp locations. When the war ended, the prisoners were sent back to their homeland. Mr. Erichsen, however, was eager to return to America as a free man. Formerly a teenage participant in a destructive army in North Africa, he is honored as a pacifist, and a highly ethical pioneer of international adoptions. Heino initiated child-saving expeditions to war-torn, poverty-stricken countries, visiting orphanages, and setting up adoption programs. His anti-war story has appeared in hundreds of local and national TV and radio programs, as well as in print media. He is the author of The Reluctant Warrior: Former German POW Finds Peace in Texas, his memoir.

In November 2009, Heino was the keynote speaker for German Memorial Day at the Patton Museum. He is often seen on the History Channel, “German Prisoners in America,” and the Texas History Channel, “Postcards from Texas,” Episode 131.

Heino R. Erichsen, M.A., has traveled the globe as founder of an international adoption agency. His experiences endowed him with compassion for children in war-torn countries. He has placed over 3,000 foreign-born orphans with American families.

Mr. Erichsen was a delegate to the Hague Convention on the Protection of Children and Cooperation in Respect of Intercountry Adoption. He was present in The Hague for the final reading of the treaty in 1993. He participated in the humanitarian activities of the National Council for Adoption and the Joint Council on International Children’s Services for twenty-five years. Heino is an expert in the field of international adoption and has been interviewed for national and local television broadcasts by ABC, CBS, NBC, CNN, Univision and WorldNet (U.S. Information Service) as well as television, radio talk shows, newspapers and magazines.
Raphael A. Grau serves as Deputy Manager in the International Space Station Program External Integration Office of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) agency at the Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center in Houston. He is responsible for all negotiations with Space Station international partners, $350 million in Russian services, external and internal communications, and international partners’ physical and virtual access to NASA assets. In his previous roles, Mr. Grau has served as NASA negotiator and Liaison to the Canadian Space Agency for the International Space Station program; as Japanese Segment Integration Manager responsible for the safety and mission success of the Japanese segment of the space station; and as Safety Lead, which included all safety aspects of the space station from development, integration, operations, and science. He is a recipient of numerous awards and honors, including NASA's highest Safety Honor, the Astronaut Corp's Highest Honor, and Director's Commendation.

Mr. Grau attained his Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering from Texas A&M University and a Master of Business Administration from the University of Houston. His work with NASA began in 1990 as Safety and Mission Assurance Engineer, ensuring the safety and quality of the International Space Station subsystems such as guidance, navigation and control, power and propulsion.

CONCURRENT SESSION DESCRIPTIONS

10:00 - 10:45 A.M.  SESSION I

CMED 101 - Israel and the Palestinian Two State Solution: Is Peace Possible?
Presenters: Professor Carolyn Davis, M.A., LSC-North Harris; Dr. Vida Davoudi, LSC-Kingwood Having recently returned from three weeks in the Middle East, Professors Davis and Davoudi will present a historical perspective of the challenges to peace and possible pathways to peace.

Professor Carolyn Davis has taught Political Science at Lone Star College-North Harris for thirty-four years and another six in Illinois where she and Professor Vida Davoudi worked on their doctorates together at Southern Illinois University. Professor Davis has won the Teacher Excellence Award seven times.

Dr. Vida Davoudi has taught at Lone Star College-Kingwood for nearly a quarter of a century. Prior to that, she was a member of the Iranian Legislature and a dedicated representative of women and children's issues.

CMED 204 - Travelers on the Trail: Human Communication in a Cultural Context
Presenter: Professor Janice Hartgrove-Freile, M.A., LSC-North Harris
A critical area of psychology is the study of human communication, from the nature and use of verbal language to the nonverbal communication afforded by body movement and the individual's use of space. This presentation will look at these varied modes and pathways of communication, including the influence of language structure and content on thought and behavior, language miscommunication, and cultural aspects of body position, movement, facial expressions, and personal space.

Janice Hartgrove-Freile is a professor of psychology at Lone Star College-North Harris. She is an International Studies and Study Abroad faculty member, Recycling Coordinator, Faculty Excellence Awards Committee Chair, and sponsor of three student organizations. She has published both fiction and non-fiction.

CMED 206 - International Education: A Pathway to Global Leadership
Presenter: Dr. Melissa N. Gonzalez, LSC-North Harris
Global leadership is the ability to influence people who come from different cultural backgrounds than the leader. One of the major goals in international education is to “grow” global leaders by expanding students' attributes to accustom their mind-set to become “global”. In this presentation, participants will develop useful global leadership capabilities to effectively lead and intersect with individuals from different cultures as well as cope with the challenges of multicultural work environments.

Dr. Melissa N. Gonzalez is the Dean of the Business and Computer Information Technology Division at Lone Star College-North
Harris. She earned her B.B.A., M.B.A., and Ph.D. in International Business Management from the University of Texas-Pan-American.

CMED 208 - A Reflection on Petra—Past and Present as Seen Through the Nabataeans and Bedouins
Presenter: Professor Deborah Ellington, M.F.A., LSC-Montgomery
This will be a lecture and discussion with images on two nomadic tribes who have left their mark on Petra. Petra, the eighth wonder of the ancient world, will be seen as it stands today. The Nebataeans carved this ancient city of temples, tombs and intricate staircases from solid rock. They were ancient Arab tribes who settled southern Jordan 2200 years ago. The caravanning business they were involved in exposed them to outside influences from the east and west as seen in the architecture of the buildings.
Bedouins are the most recent nomadic tribes to settle in Petra. The Bedouins were relocated outside of Petra in the 1960s as the importance of Petra as a tourism site grew. Where are they today and how is their culture surviving in the 21st century?

Deborah Ellington has been a full-time professor of studio art, art history and art appreciation courses at both Lone Star College-North Harris and Lone Star College-Montgomery in Houston, Texas. She has served as a chair, division head, associate dean and dean in the Lone Star College System. Deborah currently serves as Interim Dean of Instruction at LSC-Montgomery. Her academic credentials include an M.A. in painting from the University of Michigan, an M.F.A. in Ceramics from Sam Houston State University, and postgraduate coursework in Art History at Corpus Christi University, Oxford, England. Deborah received awards for her work as an instructor and as a leader outside of the classroom. These awards include Teacher Excellence from both Lone Star College-
North Harris and Our Lady of the Lake University, a Bellwether Award and Excellence Award from National Institute for Staff and Institutional Development. She is a working artist with a studio in Houston, Texas. Deborah is an avid international traveler who collects images and research for her courses and the institution.
CMED 209 - Women and Islam: An Alternative Perspective
Presenter: Kafah Bachari Manna
This presentation will provide an overview of women and Islam, as well as a discussion regarding women’s rights and feminist movements within Islamic societies.

Kafah Bachari Manna is a writer, attorney, and community activist. She is the co-founder of a unique interfaith program called the Pink Iftar. The Pink Iftar brings non-Muslim women together with women of Muslim faith backgrounds to share a meal, have a conversation, and foster a sense of understanding and compassion. Ms. Bachari Manna is also the Executive Director of the Houston Palestine Film Festival. She was born in Iran and raised in Texas. She lives in Houston with her husband and two sons.

11:00 – 11:45 a.m.  SESSION II

CMED 101 - The Nuremberg War Crimes Trial: Pathway to Justice or Ship of Fools?
Presenter: Dr. Allen R. Vogt, LSC-North Harris
Almost everyone agrees that Nazism embodied evil. But exactly what was the nature of that evil and was the Nuremberg War Crimes Trial the appropriate antidote? This multi-media program includes the insights of the speaker’s cousin, a war crimes trial court reporter, and will consider the roots, structure and legacy of Nuremberg. So expect the unexpected as well as the expected.

Dr. Vogt received his M.A. and Ph.D. in U.S. history from the University of Houston, and has served LSC-North Harris as a professor of U.S. history for 34 years. He has internationalized his HIST 1301 sections, serves on the LSC-NH Honors Council, and has won 2 faculty excellence awards.

CMED 202 - Inflation-Revolution: A Different Perspective of the Arab Spring
Presenter: Dr. Rami Shafiee, LSC-North Harris
The presentation will identify possible economic reasons involved with recent popular uprisings in the Middle East and North Africa. Many justifications have been provided ranging from influences of external political forces to the importance of social media. This presentation will focus on macroeconomic variables responsible for these historical events.

Dr. Shahram “Rami” Shafiee is Interim Dean of Health and Human Services at LSC-North Harris, and a professor of economics. In this position, which he has held for the past twenty-nine years, Dr. Shafiee is responsible for the development and instruction of courses in economics.

CMED 204 - Using Basic Economic Concepts to Promote Democracy
Presenter: Professor Rafael Donoso, M.A., LSC-North Harris
Ecuador is rich in natural resources, but still suffers poverty and inequality. There are many explanations for that, but one has sounded frequently in recent years: corruption. In this presentation, I want to share my experiences working to give any Ecuadorian citizen the right to free and wide access to public information and government financial records as a way to reduce corruption.

Rafael Donoso is Ecuadorian. He received his Master’s Degree in economics at Universidad de Tuduman. He has worked extensively in topics related to public access of government information and how this information can be used by civic organizations.

Presenters: Stefano Ballesteros, Tyler Berry, Jereme Bertus, Tara Black, Christina Brown, Blaine Donnell, Alicia Earp-Glazner, Kayleigh Ellinwood, Nathan Hill, Amanda Mehr, Anastasiya Ovchinnikova, Miriam Sanchez, Elizabeth Whittaker, LSC-Kingwood, LSC-Montgomery, and LSC-Tomball Model UN Joint Delegation

Faculty Advisors: David Birch, Professor of Political Science, LSC-Tomball; Margaret Lambert, Professor of History, LSC-Kingwood; David Kennedy, Professor of Political Science, LSC-Montgomery.

CMED 206 - Virtual Presentations at International Conferences
Presenters: Professors Maria Sanders, M.A., J.D., and Mark Thorsby, M.A., LSC-CyFair
The presenters will share their past experiences presenting virtually at the International Education, Technology, and Development Conference held in Valencia, Spain.
Maria Sanders is a professor of philosophy at Lone Star College-CyFair. She has over 20 years college teaching experience, as well as administrative and legal experience. Maria is a licensed attorney and is currently completing her dissertation for a doctorate in Philosophy.

Mark Thorsby teaches at Lone Star College-CyFair as an associate professor of philosophy. Having previously taught at City University of New York and New Jersey City University, he has presented at a variety of other conferences on the role of technology in society and the classroom.

CMED 208 - Rouen, France: A Great Location to Brush Up Your French
Presenter: Professor Bertha Ibarra Parle, M.A., LSC-North Harris
Professor Parle received a Lone Star College Faculty International Exploration (FIE) award to update French conversational skills, study contemporary culture, and immerse herself in a French-speaking environment. She has deemed it “a unique linguistic experience” and found that The Alliance Francaise in Rouen, Normandy is a wonderful site for international programs in art, history, civilization, theater, and language.

In addition to receiving the FIE award to study at the Alliance Francaise in Rouen, France, Professor Parle received a summer scholarship to study at the University of Montreal. She has received two Teaching Awards from Lone Star College System and attended the University of Texas National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) Summer Institute, University of Wisconsin, Fulbright program.

CMED 209 - Modern Asia, Modern America
Presenter: Professor Gary M. Conners, M.A., LSC-North Harris
Korean-American artists have played a dynamic and intrinsic part in the development of American Modernism and Post-Modernity. Often overshadowed by other Asian counterparts, a visual survey of Korean-American art and artists will highlight their important creative contributions.

Professor Conners serves as the lead faculty Art Historian and Director of the Fine Arts Galleries of Lone Star College-North Harris. He has experience in East Asian Art, is a practicing artist, and has served as a museum administrator and curator.

1:45 – 2:30 P.M.  SESSION III

CMED 101 - LSC-North Harris Model UN and the Challenges Faced at the United Nations
Presenters: Nguyen Cao, Ashleigh Musselman, Ralph Christian Angeles, Parisa Koochack, and German Sanchez, LSC-North Harris Model UN Delegation
This year, LSC-North Harris students represent the interests of Cyprus at the international competition held in New York. Model UN delegates assume the role of an ambassador to the United Nations, and debate current issues facing their respective nation. Come learn what it is like to be a Model UN delegate.
Faculty Advisor: Dr. Diana M. Cooley, Professor of Speech, LSC-North Harris.

CMED 202 - The Impact of Culture on Attitudes, Behavior, and Subjective Well-Being: A Study Abroad Program to Tanzania, East Africa, with Service Learning Among Orphans and Vulnerable Children.
Presenter: Professor Lori Richter, M.S., LSC-CyFair
Professor Richter will report the findings of her Faculty International Exploration to Tanzania and present her proposed study abroad program with a service learning component for general psychology. The program would offer a valuable opportunity for students to learn about cultures much different from their own, and to observe the impact of culture on attitudes and behavior. The service learning component would increase awareness of the plight of orphans and vulnerable children in the area.

Lori Richter has been teaching psychology since 1999, full time since 2007. She served as the Research and Evaluation Office for the Gambia National Women’s Bureau as a Peace Corps volunteer from 1985-87, and lived in Kenya from 1995-98. In between, she worked for a drop-out prevention program in Houston.
CMED 204 - Avoid the Freshman Fifteen - or More?
Presenter: Professor Megan Franks, M.A., LSC-North Harris
Public health studies show that diets of immigrants, including those from Asia, Africa, and Central and South America worsen the longer they stay in the United States. How to avoid gaining weight and staying healthy through the College Years! Strategies will be presented on a healthy diet and exercise.

Megan Franks is a professor with thirty-two years of teaching at LSC-North Harris. She has a B.A. and M.A. in Kinesiology. She has been awarded the Teaching Excellence Award in 1998, 2004, and 2010. Ms. Franks has coordinated the Employee Wellness Program for 10 years.

CMED 205 - Cross-Cultural Differences in the Grief Experience
Presenters: Professors Lynda Dodgen, M.A., and Adrian Rapp, M.A., LSC-North Harris
Professors Dodgen and Rapp will be doing a short introduction of the expression of grief in the U.S. They will look at grief through the eyes of an anthropologist. They will have co-presenters looking at the expression of grief in Brazil, Mexico, and Thailand.

Lynda Dodgen has been an instructor at LSC-North Harris for 25+ years. She is one of the advisors to Phi Theta Kappa at LSC-North Harris and to the Cultural Awareness Club. Lynda has written a number of scholarly articles and is the co-author of a text book. Lynda is a certified grief counselor.

Adrian Rapp has been an instructor at LSC-North Harris for 30+ years. She is the co-advisor to the Cultural Awareness Club. She has written a number of scholarly articles and books. She is also a past recipient of the Faculty Excellence Award.

CMED 206 - A Search for Meaning in a Meaningless World or Busy Being Born
Presenter: Professor Joseph L. Kagle, Jr. B.A., M.F.A., LSC-Kingwood
Professor Kagle’s presentation will utilize a gestalt game consisting of words and math to explore the way people derive meaning when communicating. His discussion will take place in the context of his personal experiences to find meaning as well as address the thinking system that Steve Jobs perfected while at Pixar and Apple. He will also outline historical attempts to find meaning during the 20th and 21st centuries.

Professor Kagle has exhibited in over 700 national and international exhibitions. In recent years, from 2000 to 2006, in the Republic of Georgia and Mongolia as “artist in residence” and “professor in residence as a Fulbright Scholar and Fulbright Senior Specialist”. The American Embassy in Tbilisi, Georgia asked him to represent the United States as an International Plenary of Artists in Kutaisi Georgia. He has headed and directed six museums (two university and four public), 1961 – 2000, and consulted foreign national museums on collecting and fund-raising. He has headed five university art departments and division of Fine Arts, 1958 –through 2001 (but still teaching and reaching). He has taught all the standard art and art history courses as well as special courses in world architectural history, arts management, fund-raising and Chinese art. Since mid-2009 he has created collage works and writing for 61 book/journals (110 –146 pages in each), 45 scrolls works of art (40 images on each), and over 350 individual works of painting and collage. Since November 2011, Kagle has created 75 acrylic and collage works, 32” x 40”; in January 2012, he created 10 new works (again, acrylic and collage).

CMED 208 - FIE to England and Scotland: Lessons Learned
Presenters: Professors Maria Sanders, M.A., J.D., and Laura Taggett, M.A., LSC-CyFair
The presentation will address the unique benefits and challenges that were found in their Faculty International Exploration trip to England and Scotland. While the Study Abroad program was not approved, the instructors gained a great deal from the experience and will be addressing that in the presentation.

Maria Sanders is a professor of philosophy at Lone Star College-CyFair. She has over 20 years college teaching experience, as well as administrative and legal experience. Maria is a licensed attorney and is currently completing her dissertation for a doctorate in Philosophy.

Laura Taggett is a professor of English at Lone Star College-CyFair. Having previously taught in Iowa, Taggett received her Master’s Degree in Literature from Iowa State University, her Bachelor’s Degree from Saginaw Valley State University in Michigan, and her Associates from Delta College (MI).
