KidCare opens for current LSC-Kingwood students

For some students, juggling college classes, a job and family responsibilities is a hard reality. To help ease some of the burden, Lone Star College-Kingwood has revamped its KidCare program.

The mission of LSC-Kingwood’s KidCare program is to provide exemplary childcare services for the children of students attending the college. Located in the newly remodeled Performing Arts Center (PAC), the program is administered in cooperation with the Lake Houston Family YMCA. College students who are enrolled in at least nine hours of on-campus coursework can register their children for daytime child care services while they are in class. Online enrollment of nine hours does not qualify the student for the services.

“We opened this daycare because more than 65 percent of our students are females. We recognize that as we continue to focus on completion and students earning a degree while enrolled at LSC-Kingwood…child care is a serious reality...with financial and student success implications,” said Dr. Darrin Rankin, vice president of Student Success. “We are serious about ensuring student success. The daycare center which we are currently underwriting at a loss is an investment in our students and their success.”

KidCare can only accommodate 35 children at one time. Children are registered on a first-come, first served basis. While in the program, children will be taught curriculum-based objectives depending on their age level.

The KidCare program will be run with a preferred ratio of one to ten. Staff members will meet all requirements of the Texas Department of Family and Protective Services including but not limited to: background check, complete FBI fingerprinting, certified in CPR/first-aid, orientation/pre-service and observation training and monthly training.

The cost to enroll children ages 3–5 is $30 per week payable monthly which includes activities and snacks. KidCare hours are 7 a.m.–4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Registration forms are available at the KidCare in PAC. For more information, call 281-312-1469.
The six high schools in Humble ISD sent 28% of their graduates to Kingwood. These percentages are larger than those reported for Texas A & M, University of Houston (main campus and UHD), University of Texas (Austin and San Antonio), Sam Houston State University, Stephen F. Austin and Texas State combined.

Nationwide, more first time in college students start their higher education at a community college than any other post-secondary option. Tuition and fees are still a bargain at Kingwood—as little as $704 for a full load of 12 semester credit hours, but the education is world class. No wonder students from all parts of our service area have made Kingwood their first choice.

The majority of students who attend LSC-Kingwood are under 25 (62%) and female (65%). They are diverse, reflecting our service area. (Continued on page 9)

Register now for spring 2013 classes

With spring 2013 around the corner, students can continue planning their educational career at Lone Star College-Kingwood or at LSC-Atascocita Center.

Students can still register for the spring 2013 semester. Registration for the 16-week spring semester will end on January 12 and classes will start on January 14. Courses are designed to fit a broad range of academic goals toward certificates, associate's degrees or university transfer. Academy for Lifelong Learning hosts open house events

Lone Star College-Kingwood’s Academy for Lifelong Learning (ALL) is inviting community members to its spring Open House on January 28 at the LSC-Atascocita Center and on February 5 at the East Montgomery County Improvement District (EMCID) in New Caney.

The open house is an opportunity for individuals age 50 and older to meet others and register to become a member of the program. The event is from 2–4 p.m.

“The ALL program offers non-credit courses, lectures and social activities for continued intellectual and personal growth. The curriculum offers a range of instruction from conversational Spanish to yoga to digital photography, depending upon the interest of the members,” said Pat Chandler, program coordinator for ALL.

The college’s ALL program began in February 2004 at EMCID and in just nine years, the program has grown to more than 1,000 active members. In fall 2012, ALL began offering classes, such as art, culinary, fitness, healthcare, history, legal, and politics at the LSC-Atascocita Center.

“These ALL classes will give adults in Summerwood, Lakeshore, Waters Edge, Summer Lake Ranch, etc. an educational setting to make more friendships and help us connect as a whole new Northeast community—not just a subdivision, section or street,” said Barbara Murdock, Waters Edge resident and ALL member.

ALL is a volunteer program and courses are taught by members, LSC-Kingwood employees, and area residents. Additional subjects include genealogy, history, languages, music, nature and the environment, photography, travel and many others. Members also take occasional day trips to Houston-area destinations via METRO bus and rail.

Annual membership is $20 from September 1–August 31 with courses taught by volunteers. There are no educational requirements.

LSC-Atascocita Center is located at 15903 West Lake Houston Parkway. EMCID is located at 21575 Highway 59 North in New Caney. For more information about the ALL program call 281-312-1750, http://www.lonestar.edu/all-kingwood.htm or e-mail kwall@lonestar.edu.

LSC-Kingwood hosted political forums

As the presidential and local elections heated up, Lone Star College-Kingwood hosted a series of candidate forums for the community, students, faculty and staff.

Hosted by the college’s Center for Civic Engagement, the forums gave constituents an opportunity to learn more about the candidates who were running for public office. The public met the candidates, listened to their positions and asked questions.

“We hosted these forums because we see our role as a resource for students and the community by educating not only workers but also citizens,” said Dr. John Theis, political science professor and Center for Civic Engagement sponsor. “We recognized the fundamental role educational institutions play in building informed citizens and in creating public spaces where dialogue and deliberation can occur with our elected leaders.”

The candidate forums provided a local non-partisan setting for the public to meet with their leaders. Political forums were held for the Republican and Democratic Harris County Commissioners, Harris County Tax Assessor, Republican State Legislators, Republican, Democrat, Libertarian and Green Party Congressional Candidates, Libertarian and Green Party U.S. Senate Candidates, Republican and Democrat local law enforcement, Green Party state and local candidates, U.S. Representative Ted Poe, and U.S. vice president candidate, Judge Jim Gray.

For more information on the candidate forums at LSC-Kingwood, call 281-312-1750 or e-mail John.J.Theis@LoneStar.edu.
Students use technology to teach patients

Dental Hygiene faculty and students at Lone Star College-Kingwood set the bar high when their patient education Service Learning project was presented at the National Association of Biology Teachers conference in Dallas.

The faculty developed a strategy and pedagogical model for teaching students and patients about oral hygiene in an effective way. Using a Phase Contrast Microscope, this project allows students to work with the digital microscope attached to a LCD projector to demonstrate to their patients how oral hygiene practices influence bacterial growth in the mouth; the bacterial colonies correlate with diseases of the gums, mouth, and teeth.

“Through this project, students are able to see the live bacteria brought to life by patients. This teaches them that people have good and bad living bacteria in their mouths and that what we do at home—brushing and flossing—makes a difference,” said Maribeth Stitt, Dental Hygiene director. “This project also educates patients that living bacteria that are present under their gums can cause gum disease.”

Biology professor, Dr. Brian Shmaefsky, presented this project at the conference where it received accolades from professionals across the United States and from other counties.

“The students used a microscope that few biology majors learn and found out how to interpret oral disease from digital images and videos of patient specimens,” he said.

The Dental Hygiene program received the Phase Contrast Microscope in spring 2012 and the students finished the project at the end of the first summer semester.

Scholarship established in memory of speech professor

Lone Star College-Kingwood students, faculty and staff mourned the death of Collier Patton, speech professor and forensics coach, who passed away August 2.

To honor his memory, the Collier Dean Patton Memorial Speech Scholarship was established. In addition, a tree will be planted on campus as a living memorial to Patton and the college will also dedicate a bench.

“He will be long remembered for his professionalism, dedication to students, and great sense of humor,” said Jim Stubbs, dean of Arts and Humanities. “Collier’s natural charisma and love for teaching and coaching forensics benefited his students both in the classroom and in competition. He will be missed by all who were fortunate to have known him as a colleague and friend.”

Professor Patton was hired at LSC-Kingwood in August 2007. He was very active in state and national forensics organizations and was named Educator of the Year among college and university faculty by the Texas Intercollegiate Forensics Association in 2011. His LSC-Kingwood debate teams were highly competitive at the state and national levels and received many accolades and awards. Due to his energetic advocacy of his students, graduates of his program were in demand by university debate programs and many were recipients of debate scholarships throughout the nation.

Under Patton’s leadership, LSC-Kingwood’s Forensics Team and individual students earned numerous awards. Some of those include:

• Texas Intercollegiate Forensics Association’s Fall State Championship: first place Community College Team and second place Overall Team.
• Texas Intercollegiate Forensics Association’s Spring State Championship: first place Overall Team.
• Phi Rho Pi Regional Championship: earned Lone Star Sweepstakes Award. (Top Team in the State)
• American Forensics Association National Championship: fourth place Overall Community College Team.
• Phi Rho Pi National Championship: bronze Debate Overall Team and bronze Individual Events Overall Team.

Patton earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in Communications from Hardin-Simmons University and a Master of Arts degree in Communication Studies at Baylor University.

Public invited to ponder life at “No Exit”

Contemplating the meaning of life and what happens after death will be explored in Lone Star College-Kingwood’s first spring production.

“No Exit”, a famous existentialist play by the French playwright Jean Paul Sarte, explores the meaning of human existence and searches for a deeper meaning to the afterlife-specifically “hell”. This production will take place February 21-23 at 7:30 p.m. and on February 23-24 at 2 p.m. in the college’s Performing Arts Center Main Stage.

“Sarte determined, through writing this play, that his interpretation of hell is ‘other people you cannot escape from’,” said Eric Skiles, artistic director of theatre and drama professor at LSC-Kingwood. “We are excited to be presenting this classic work for the first time.”

The main characters in “No Exit” are Garcin, an 18th century soldier; Estelle, a ‘20s socialite; and Inez, a ‘70s earth mother. The trio is aided in their exploration by the Valet, a mysterious male figure who ushers them into their surroundings. The cast will be comprised entirely of LSC-Kingwood students.

“This play is widely produced in the education theatre arena. Its subject matter is universal, and its moral tone is long-lasting. It has moments of humor mixed with intense drama,” Skiles said. “This production was chosen as a high-quality piece of dramatic literature that can play in less than 80 minutes and will travel easily to other locations.”

After its run at LSC-Kingwood, “No Exit” will travel to LSC-Tomball to be entered in the 2013 Play Festival sponsored by the Texas Community College Speech and Theatre Association. TCCSTA is the accrediting body for two-year theatre programs. Each student actor and technical crew member will be eligible for individual awards at the festival.

Tickets can be reserved or purchased at the LSC-Kingwood Box Office. The cost for general admission is $12; senior citizens are $10 and students are $5. For more information, call 281-312-1532.

College hosts Piano Recital Series

Lone Star College-Kingwood’s Music Department held its first Piano Recital Series concert in fall 2012 for the community, students, faculty and staff.

Internationally-acclaimed pianist, entertainer, and comedian Mimi Blais opened the college’s series in September. Known by several nicknames, Blais is a musical performer, composer, arranger, writer who in high demand because of her tremendous talent and joyful personality.

“I couldn’t think of a more entertaining artist to open our inaugural piano series,” said Jay Whatley, music professor at LSC-Kingwood. “Mimi can do it all. She has the technique to play the most difficult piano repertoire, and the wit to play the most fun repertoire.”

A month later, the series highlighted the work of young pianists Chung Hon (Michael) Cheng and Patrick Pan. At the tender age of 14, both Cheng and Pan have won numerous awards at the local, state, regional and national levels. Both pianists are students of John Weems from Sugar Land.

“We were very fortunate to present not one, but two of the finest young pianists in the country,” Whatley said.

“This was a great opportunity for our patrons to hear the legendary pianists of tomorrow.”

LSC-Kingwood’s Music Department will continue its Piano Recital Series through spring 2013, with concerts featuring performers of regional, national, and international renown—including several Houston artists—all performing in the college’s Recital Hall. The pianists will perform on the college’s Yamaha CFX 9’ grand piano.

FamilyTime Crisis and Counseling Center and the Houston Police Department representatives spoke on Domestic Violence at LSC-Kingwood in October. Prior to the presentation, students donated items to FamilyTime’s shelter.

Community residents participated in arts and crafts at Lone Star College-Atascocita Center’s first Harvest Fest. The community also had a chance to participate in outdoor activities and learn more about what the college has to offer.

The Office of Student Life and the Veterans Club honored military men and women at its annual Veterans’ Day celebration on November 8.

LSC-Kingwood music faculty entertained the crowd at the college’s annual Stellar Evening performance. This event is a fundraiser for the Fine Arts Scholarship Fund.

The Greater Lake Houston Heart Walk was held at Lone Star College-Kingwood. Several community members, businesses, and organizations participated in an effort to raise money and awareness for the American Heart Association.
LSC-Kingwood held an Educators’ Breakfast at the beginning of the semester for all high school counselors. This breakfast updated educators on processes used to enroll students into the college.

Through a partnership between Lone Star College-Kingwood and the University of Houston-Downtown, students can earn their Associate of Arts in Teaching degree from LSC-Kingwood and earn a Bachelor of Arts degree in Interdisciplinary Studies (BAIS) with teacher certification from UHD without having to leave the Kingwood campus.

Representative Dan Huberty spoke with members of the Academy for Lifelong Learning program regarding Lake Houston and its importance in the community.

Students from the Splendora and Quest Early College High School programs travelled to LSC-Kingwood to earn college credit. This experience allowed the students to interact and become familiar with a college campus. The Early College High School program allows students to earn college credit while they are still in high school. Upon graduation, most students will have earned at least 60 credit hours.
Lone Star College-Kingwood’s Kinesiology and Dance department proudly presented its first Dance Student Showcase. The evening featured 14 dance works choreographed and performed by students.

“The evening included solo performances by third and fourth semester Dance Performance students along with four short movement studies explored during the compositional unit of the class. In addition, members of the Dance Ensemble, a student club, showcased group performances,” said Amy Llanes, adjunct dance professor.

“Angry Birds”, a dance performance choreographed by Aneisha Davis, was inspired by the famous Alfred Hitchcock movie, “The Birds”. This piece involved a hunter killing a tribe of birds’ leader.

“The message of this dance is that we as humans are controlled by a higher power and are forced to mimic it,” Anastasia Bakhvalova said about her solo.

“…Til Death Do Us Part”, choreographed by Anthony Davis, paid homage to the Holocaust. This dance performance expressed the struggles many people went through in Europe during the early 1940s.

Funds raised went toward students attending the American College Dance Festival in March 2013. For more information on LSC-Kingwood’s Dance program, visit http://www.lonestar.edu/dance-dept-kingwood.htm.

Intercultural Center opens door to diversity

Creating a systemic change toward an intercultural perspective across the campus and fostering community-building and collaboration among diverse groups both within and outside of the college is the vision of LSC-Kingwood’s new Intercultural Center.

According to Kristen Wilkes, program coordinator, the center is committed to the enhancement of a positive experience for students, staff and faculty, especially those from culturally and ethnically diverse communities.

“Our purpose is to implement programming and services that support the personal and intellectual development of all LSC-Kingwood students including African-Americans, Asian-Americans, Latino Americans, Native Americans, multiracial, international, ESOL, GLBT, low-income, students with disabilities, and first-generation college students,” Wilkes said.

Intercultural Center personnel will implement programming to address awareness, inclusion and equity; collaborate and volunteer with community organizations which include non-profit organizations and school districts; hold student forums; create culturally-themed events; host a community dialogue series; develop a comprehensive peer mentoring program for students of underrepresented groups; develop and prepare future leaders to be culturally competent in a diverse and multicultural society; and create a financial literacy program.

“The center is critical in helping our campus and local community to become citizens of cultural competence in a society that is so diverse,” Wilkes said.

The Intercultural Center is located in the Student-Conference Center 234. For more information, call 281-312-1791 or e-mail Kristen.Wilkes@LoneStar.edu.
New deans hired for fall semester

Retirement, promotion and new opportunities led Lone Star College-Kingwood’s administration team to hire four new deans for the 2012–2013 year.

The new hires are David Baty, dean of Lone Star College-Atascocita Center (satellite campus of LSC-Kingwood); Garth Howard, dean of Student Development; Kim Klepcyk, dean of Educational Partnerships; and Dr. Marie Sesay, dean of the Behavioral, Technology and Social Sciences (BTSS) division.

Prior to becoming the first permanent dean of the new LSC-Atascocita Center, Baty served as the dean of Student Services and associate dean and director of the Community and Professional Learning Division for Quinebaug Valley Community College in Connecticut. There, he oversaw an off-campus center which accounted for 25 percent of the total college enrollment.

Baty holds a Master of Education degree in Educational Leadership from the University of Sarasota/Argosy; a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology at the University of South Florida; and an Associate of Arts degree from St. Petersburg Junior College in Florida.

Klepcyk’s relationship with the Lone Star College System and LSC-Kingwood stemmed from her work as principal of Quest Early College High School program in the Humble Independent School District. Through her leadership, she has led this small reform-oriented high school and has recently guided the transformation of the school into an Early College High School. The school was recently named the 2011 winner of ASCD’s (formerly, Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development) annual Vision in Action: The ASCD Whole Child Award.

Klepcyk earned a Master of Arts degree in Adult/Higher Education with a concentration in English from the University of Texas at San Antonio; and a Bachelor of Arts degree in Journalism/Public Relations from the University of Texas at Austin. She has done post-graduate work at Rice University.

Sesay’s passion for education has grown through several years of experience as a faculty member for various colleges including the Lone Star College System. Prior to becoming dean at LSC-Kingwood, she served as assistant director of Admissions, Counselor, Graduate and International Advisor at Park University-Austin. Sesay values her college and university experiences and conveys those skills throughout her work.

Sesay holds a Ph.D. from the Community College Leadership Program at the University of Texas at Austin; completed post graduate work and earned a master’s degree in Counseling from Prairie View A&M University; and earned a bachelor’s degree in Gerontology from Stephen F. Austin State University.

Howard holds a Master of Business Education degree from Baker College in Auburn Hills, Mich.; and a Bachelor of Arts degree in Communication from St. Mary’s College in Orchard Lake, Mich.

Howard previously served as director of Student Engagement and Leadership at Marygrove College in Detroit. Through his extensive experience in community outreach along with several leadership roles, Howard has a reputation of being a very energetic professional who is student-centered and passionate about super serving students.

President

This fall, the student body is 47% white, 24% Hispanic, 17% African American, and 3% Asian. About 240 of our students are enrolled on foreign visas as international students, giving LSC-Kingwood a rich multicultural environment for students seeking to become competent players in a global environment.

Our students earned 700 associate’s degrees last year and 129 certificates. Graduates and others who did not enter the workforce directly transferred to the University of Houston (526 students), UHD (422), SHSU (429), Texas A & M (341), UT-Austin (244), Texas State at San Marcos (135), and many more. These students transferred well-equipped to succeed in completing a bachelor’s degree; LSCS students consistently outperform native students upon transfer. Sixty-three percent of all jobs in the United States will require a post-secondary credential of some kind by 2018. LSC-Kingwood is working with its ISD partners, business, and transfer universities to provide all parts of our service area with opportunities for success.
LSC-Kingwood celebrates international culture

Celebrating diversity among students, faculty, staff and the community was the goal of Lone Star College-Kingwood’s annual International Education Week, November 12–15.

LSC-Kingwood’s Office of Student Life (OSL) and the Intercultural Center hosted a myriad of activities that educated the audience on different cultures, ideas and lifestyles.

“The celebration of International Education Week was important because it allowed individuals to immerse and familiarize themselves on various cultural backgrounds. That week encompassed many areas, but most importantly, it was a time for all to be educated internationally and globally,” said Kristen Wilkes, Intercultural program coordinator. “It also allowed people to share their intercultural experiences and how those experiences have since shaped their lives.”

International Education Week kicked off with the community invited to a notable presentation by art professor Mari Omari. Other activities included a faculty discussion panel on different cultural backgrounds, Around the World Trivia, the Kingwood Stars Talent Show, International Coffee Hour, dance performances and an ethnic dinner.

LSC-Kingwood professors visit TimeGate, discuss partnerships

With technology steadily changing, Lone Star College-Kingwood professors Caroline Chamness, Game Design and Simulation; and Shawn Sedoff, Visual Communication; toured TimeGate, the largest game studio in Houston.

While touring the 24-camera Motion Capture Studio, Chamness and Sedoff saw firsthand how the skill of using this technology is needed in the Animation and Game Design industry. In preparing students, LSC-Kingwood recently obtained an 8-camera Motion Capture System.

“This system allows students to animate characters using their own body movements which are tracked with motion capture cameras and sensors on a suit that the student wears,” she explained.

In addition to touring the motion capture system, the professors spoke with Dr. Alireza Tavakkoli regarding the college’s partnership with UH-Sugar Land. Through an articulation agreement, students in LSC-Kingwood’s Game Design program can now earn a bachelor’s degree in Game Design Art or Programming from UH-Sugar Land. The university also partners with TimeGate which provides internships to students.

For more information on the Game Design and Development program contact Caroline Chamness at 281-312-1427 or caroline.m.chamness@lonestar.edu. For more information on the Visual Communications program contact Shawn Sedoff at 281-312-1742 or shawn.g.sedoff@lonestar.edu.
