newsletter and trying to organize interactive and fun events that allow employees the
The team is working to do this by highlighting different individuals in the campus' weekly said.

"The biggest contribution I want to make while I'm president is to create a Houston North When she transitioned to her current role at LSC-Houston North, starting PSSA there was She began her career at LSC-North Harris as a public relations specialist in 2016. Eventually, we're doing for our students…that keeps me going every day," Bueno said.

indoor rock climbing, sport shooting, and trying new restaurants. His hobby lies in go-kart position on his campus, it was that same mindset that motivated him to accept the role.
tank committee that has encouraged him to consider the new challenges around every corner.

Through her involvement with LSC professional development programs, Gonzalez knows To her, the conversation is that of giving back to the community. Gonzalez was nominated for connections to her peers through the organization. Being a voice for others and engaging {nominated for the president position. Nonetheless, she is excited to bring resources and opportunity to connect with everyone even more now," Gonzalez said.

"I hope what comes across is that I have a strong work ethic, and I want to help people.

"I want to bring everyone together. I'm all for networking, and I'm all for connection; it's

It is all connected. There is an administrative side and there is a student side, but we're all she has developed a passion for education, knowledge, and growth. Here, Gonzalez gets A few years later, Gonzalez stepped into her current position at LSC-System Office, University various community outreach programs but also enjoys being outside on her family's farm.

Holloway's family and church activities occupy her time away from work. She is involved in added measure of knowledge to our new working routines," Holloway said.

"Each one of us have jobs and roles. So, I simply want to take the talents that we have and day as a gift and looks for opportunities to connect others, which is especially important Lone Star too," Holloway said.

many different hats contributing to the system's overall course catalog, accreditation, and their two dogs, Hope and Faith. In their time off, Hall and her husband are in the process bachelor's degree in marketing. She expressed her gratitude to LSC for these opportunities.

"I feel like I can be the voice for our staff at LSC-Kingwood and get things done. I'm also "Working for Lone Star College, I have stability – these past few months (with COVID-19), as a dental assistant but then returned to LSC in 2016 when degree in business from LSC-Kingwood. She went on to work Hall was raised in this area and received her associate has been a bright spot of opportunity for Deirdre Hall.

In many ways, being part of the Lone Star College community niche in communication studies with a focus on corporate attended the University of Houston-Downtown and found her Bueno, who works as a community relations coordinator Support Staff Association at Lone Star College-Houston bylaws and all. It is only fitting that she has taken the President at Lone Star College-Kingwood
by Jane Stueckemann