The Very First Step: Decide which kind of source you have—Is it a book, a journal article, an article from a magazine or an encyclopedia, or is it an anthology of literary criticism? Choose the example that is the closest match. Always double space items on your works cited. Use alphabetical order. Never number the items.

Type of Entry	Works Cited	In Text Cite
A Journal Article Reprinted in an Anthology Anthologies include, for example: Short Story Criticism, Poetry Criticism, Twentieth Century Criticism, Contemporary Literary Criticism, etc. MLA Reference: 5.5.6 (MLA pages are 157-60.)	What goes where? This example shows the order of items. ❶ Miller, Annabelle. ❷ "The Perfect Robot." ❸ Science Fiction      ❹ 26.4 (1993): ❺12-22. ❻ Rpt. in Twentieth Century Literary Criticism. ❽ Ed. Paula Jones. Vol. 3. ❾ Detroit: Gale, 1991.      ❿ 218-19. ⓫ Print. KEY: ❶ Author of article. ❷ "Article title" in quote marks      ❸ Journal Title in Italics ❹ Volume. Issue (Year):      ❺ Page numbers ❻ Rpt. (Reprinted) in Title of Anthology      ❽ Editor and Volume ❾ City: Name of Publishing Co., Most Recent Year of Copyright      ❿ Pages ⓫ Medium	(Miller 218)      ↑      Author's last name and page number go inside the text of your paper. Parentheses go after the quoted or paraphrased material, usually at the end of a sentence or a paragraph in your paper.
Second References to same volume above! This example is for a second article from the anthology above. Note how much shorter it is!	Kot, Edna. "Themes in Science Fiction Stories." Jones 73-74. Print. Notice: Second references are much shorter! This shows a second article from the volume of criticism shown above. When you use the same volume for a second time (or more), use the author's full name, but use the editor's last name only. In this example, Edna Kot is the author of the article cited, and Jones is the editor of the entire volume.	(Kot 74)      ↑  Notice: Use no punctuation and no "p." for page number.
